Louisiana Appeals Court Justices Side with LAE in Type Two Charter School Funding Challenge

Justices of the Louisiana First Circuit Court of Appeal agree: it is unconstitutional to pay for Type 2 charter schools through the state’s public school funding formula.

“This is a significant victory in defending the right of every child in Louisiana to attend a quality public school,” said LAE President Debbie Meaux. “It is crucial for the state to adequately fund the institutions where the vast majority of Louisiana’s students learn, and a majority of Louisiana’s students learn in public school classrooms.”

Type 2 charter schools authorized by BESE are funded with a combination of state and local tax dollars. Local school officials have expressed that these types of schools siphon off dedicated tax revenue intended for other purposes such as educator salaries and benefits, technology, and infrastructure.

The LAE and nearly a dozen of its affiliates from across the state filed a lawsuit in September of 2014 to protect public school funding. After a year-and-a-half-long appeal process, the LAE’s legal team was able to demonstrate that using Minimum Foundation Program (MFP) dollars to fund Type 2 charter schools violates the Louisiana Constitution’s provision requiring MFP funds to be allocated to parish and city schools; Type 2 charter schools do not meet this definition. The ruling effectively eliminates the state’s authority to use MFP dollars (including locally-generated tax revenues) to fund new Type 2 charter schools.

“The result, in this case, was largely foreshadowed by the Louisiana Supreme Court’s 2013 decision that voucher schools could not be funded through the MFP,” said Brian Blackwell, the lead attorney for the LAE. “MFP dollars are restricted to city and parish school systems, and Type 2 charter schools are not city and parish school systems.”

There are 35 Type 2 charter schools currently operating in Louisiana. These schools derive most of their operating revenues (more than $80 million annually) from MFP funding. With tens of millions of dollars at stake, the decision will likely head to the state’s highest court for appeal, but Meaux said she hopes the legislature will intervene.

“It’s time to correct the unconstitutional diversion of funds (both state and local) so that decisions like these won’t impede any child’s education,” she said. “Ensuring every student’s basic right to a great public school is LAE’s top priority. We look forward to a swift and final resolution to this issue so that our public school educators can continue to focus on increasing student success and moving our public schools forward.”
The news cycle has certainly kept us on our toes lately. From historic weather, heartbreaking violence, and citywide protests in 2016 to transitions in leadership and activism movements in 2017 – one thing’s for sure: we, as a people, continue to be impacted by the happenings in our communities. As 2017 continues, we will find ourselves faced with varying opinions – especially when it comes to our values and our beliefs – but I say, let us seize these differences. As educators, we are in unique positions to teach our students the importance of both tolerance and acceptance. I hope you will join me in embracing any opportunity to shape character and instill hope within the children we serve.

LAE leaders and staff are looking forward to the coming year as we continue our efforts to determine how to best serve Louisiana’s education community. We have a series of Listening Tours scheduled across the state in which we plan to gather the insights we need to drive the direction of the association’s advocacy efforts. These meetings – where we meet with educators of varying positions and backgrounds – have proven vital to LAE over the past few years. We enjoy interfacing with members, but most importantly, the information we gather is crucial in the process of crafting legislation and deciding positions of support/opposition on other pieces of legislation. This feedback also provides me with powerful testimony from voices in the field to share with members of the legislature, as well as BESE. Please make plans to join us when we schedule a visit at your school. I hope to see you on the road.

With Louisiana’s annual legislative season quickly approaching, the LAE Lobby Team is working to craft policy proposals which will benefit Louisiana’s education professionals. I, along with our education policy specialists, will be your voice in Baton Rouge during the session. Though this is always the case, I need you to add your valuable insights to these conversations. We need local members to commit to lobbying (both virtually and physically) on behalf of the association. Please pledge to take action on any requests that may come your way. We promise to make it as easy as possible for you to write letters to your senators and representatives addressing concerns over education proposals via our online advocacy tool, Action Network. In addition, please commit to becoming an active advocate at your school and at your school board meetings; your professional well-being depends on it. It is truly important that we all play a role in the preservation of public education.

As you know, LAE members across the state drive association-wide decisions. The strength of the whole is determined by those who lead. We are approaching LAE’s 2017 Election Season where soon, you will have an opportunity to vote for your colleagues running for leadership positions. Please vote for the candidates you feel are most qualified to lead the association – biographies are included within this newsletter. Please be sure to review all information carefully and be prepared to vote beginning March 10.

Another important association initiative to consider is nominating a colleague (or two) for the LAE Image Awards. Every year, LAE honors a teacher, ESP, administrator, ancillary professional, Friend of Education, and Human and Civil Rights Trailblazer. Find applications and instructions for the nominating process at lae.org/lae2017imageawards. The deadline to apply is March 3rd.

One more item to consider: there exist many professional development opportunities available to you through LAE’s Teaching and Learning Center. Go to lae.org/teachingandlearning to view current course offerings.

Many of you are totally focused on the race to testing, so I know it’s easy to look past the joy that comes with your position. I urge you make it a point to step back and take a look at your students. They are what it’s all about. Become knowledgeable and involved in your quest – our quest – to preserve public education. Take pride in your professional association. LAE is building credibility as a true change agent. I invite you to be a part of that change. Public education needs advocates willing to step forward to ensure its continuance as a constitutional provider of education and protector of democracy. Best of luck in the remaining school year and wishes for continued success in 2017 and beyond.

In Solidarity,
President Meaux
As Louisiana enters the 2017 Legislative Season, it’s important to highlight some of the groundbreaking accomplishments educators have achieved over the past year. LAE members were instrumental in working with Governor Edwards to establish, by executive order, an advisory council on the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA). Association lobbyists collaborated with Senator Gerald Boudreaux to reduce the impact of the value-added model on teacher evaluations. Members supported the LAE Lobby Team’s efforts to safeguard schools, teachers, and students against any unintended consequences which stood to arise as a result of the transition to new teaching standards. LAE helped to defeat legislation that would have limited assault leave benefits for educators who sustain life-altering injuries in the line of duty. On the retirement front, educators – both active and retired – worked closely with association lobbyists and state lawmakers to pass legislation to grant retirees a long-overdue cost-of-living adjustment.

In the 2017 Legislative Session, LAE lobbyists are committed to continuing the fight to protect K-12 public education funding. In addition to this, LAE’s major areas of focus for the session include proposals to reduce unnecessary high-stakes tests, establishing a revamped school accountability system, charter school transparency, teacher evaluations, and enhanced learning standards. As always, LAE lobbyists will advocate for sustained salary increases for teachers and education support professionals. We can expect the powerful forces of corporate reform to continue an all-out assault on public education, which will most likely include a continued attempt to take away payroll dues deduction, as well as efforts to gut public employee pensions in order to balance the state’s deficit.

Massive budget woes left behind by the Jindal administration continue to plague the state. A special session is currently underway to address the remaining budget shortfall for this fiscal year. The state now faces a $304 million deficit in the current year with a $400 million shortfall predicted for 2018. This figure is down from 1.9 billion just one year ago. It’s important to note that in the first year of his leadership, Governor Edwards and his administration have saved and/or cut more than $850 million in government spending. LAE will work closely with the Governor and the legislature to advocate for comprehensive tax reform that is responsible and fair. A realistic approach is needed to solve the state’s long-term budget situation. In November of 2016, the Task Force on Structural Changes in Budget and Tax Policy presented final recommendations on a comprehensive solution to stabilize the state’s budget woes. The task force emphasized that an appropriate tax structure should be fair, simple, and stable in the long term. This group’s recommendations focus on the budget, as well as sales, individual income, corporate income and franchise, and property taxes. The recommendations present options for reforming several parts of the state’s tax and fiscal structure to decrease its complexity, taxpayer inequities, and the inability of the Governor and the Louisiana Legislature to adequately respond to financial downturns.

In our hands, we hold power to create positive change in the educational environments of all K-12 public school students. We must focus on strengthening our organization by being the bold voice of the public school employee. We must also continue our focus on building stronger bonds with parents, community organizations, and other labor organizations who believe in the value of public education. We need all members joining us in support of this cause.

REMEMBER: NOMINATIONS FOR THE 2017 LAE IMAGE AWARDS ARE DUE FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 2017

The LAE Image Awards are presented annually to recognize association members whose leadership and actions in their professions have advanced public education in Louisiana. Every year, the LAE chooses one outstanding teacher, ESP, administrator, ancillary personnel, Friend of Education, and Human and Civil Rights Trailblazer to honor. The LAE is now accepting applications for the 2017 Image Awards. The deadline to submit nominations is Friday, March 3, 2017. You can find out more information, as well as download the applications, at www.lae.org/2017laeimageawards.
Please let the candidate information provided within this newsletter serve as reference when voting in LAE’s 2017 elections. Our neutral, Election-America, will send elections notifications to those LAE members who have a valid email address on file in LAE’s membership database. To update this information, contact the LAE Membership Department at 1-800-256-4523, ext. 101.

The elections portal will open March 10 and run through March 31, 2017. During that period, online voting will be available 24-7. You can expect to receive an email to your personal email address notifying you when the online election portal is open. This email will provide you with a link to the elections website, along with your LAE member ID that you need to access your online ballot. To avoid any confusion, you may want to make sure you’re able to accept emails from Election-America.com. If you do not receive this email, please be sure to visit lae.org between March 10 and 31 and look for the LAE Elections banner on the home page. Simply click the banner to be taken directly to the elections portal. You’ll need your LAE member ID number on hand in order to log in to access your ballot – this number can be found on your LAE Membership Card or in the mailing address section of this newsletter. In addition to your member number, you will also need to enter the last four digits of your social security number.

WELCOME TO LAE’S NEWEST STAFF ORGANIZERS

Alice Floros will serve as the UniServ Director in LAE’s southwest region for the parishes of Acadia, Allen, Beauregard, Calcasieu, Cameron, Jefferson Davis and Vernon. Before coming to LAE, Alice supported and developed leaders as an NEA organizer in Saint Louis, Missouri, her home. Her passion stems from her experience as a preschool aide and ninth grade Social Studies teacher. Alice is excited to work with local leaders and looks forward to engaging more education professionals in association work across Southwest Louisiana.

Antonio Pelt will serve as the UniServ Director for a portion of LAE’s southeast region for the parishes of Ascension, Avoyelles, Baker, Central, Concordia, East Feliciana, Livingston, Pointe Coupee, St. Helena, Tangipahoa, West Feliciana, and Zachary. Antonio, a former high school teacher from Michigan, was a rank-and-file member of the union. He has more than a decade of organizing experience, working as a Field Rep/Organizer for eight years at Service Employees International Union in Houston, followed by the Texas State Teachers Association as a Project Field Organizer, and AFSCME as a Field Rep for City of Houston employees. He looks forward to working with local members to effect change and activism around important K-12 education issues.

Stephen Murray will serve as the UniServ Director for a portion of LAE’s northern region for the parishes of Beinvill, Bossier, Caddo, Claiborne, DeSoto, Lincoln, Jackson, Natchitoches, Red River, Sabine, Union, and Webster. He began organizing at just 12-years-old, knocking on doors for a congressional campaign. Since then, he’s been a successful organizer for a number of different labor groups – everything from adjunct college professors to janitors. Stephen comes from a family of educators and looks forward to working with the dedicated teachers and school professionals in North Louisiana.

Chauncey Stephens will serve as an organizer for the East Baton Rouge Institute as she seeks to promote an equitable public education for all students. Chauncey, a product of a strong Louisiana public education, recently graduated from Louisiana State University with a bachelor’s degree in Elementary Education. While at LSU, Chauncey studied poverty and education, as well as the impact of school reform on vulnerable communities. She looks forward to collaborating with local educators to improve opportunities for the students and community members of East Baton Rouge Parish.
